Whist Drive on Friday Night

Stony Plain Junior basketball players are now working hard at their regular practices, and some good basketball playing is to be expected when this young team goes into action. Miss Margaret Pailer is the captain, and the team comprises some very clever players for their ages. They are putting on a whist drive in the town hall tomorrow night, May 5th, and as the girls are well worthy of support, their party should be well patronised on Friday evening.

Another Good Sign

Another sign of the good times on the way is the Chevrolet sign just installed over the Service Garage. The competition between eye arresting street signs is now at an end, for the time being: the new one seems to outpower 'em all. The first night the sign was turned on, the natives up at North Pickleville thought the town was afire. Previous to the latest installation, the most noticeable night sign on the main stem was the intermittent electric winker on the B. & A. garage. The new bright light is the first Neon sign in Stony.

All Checks Require Stamps.

Starting Monday last, all checks presented at the banks must have stamps attached. The new Federal regulations requiring a 3 cent stamp on a check of less than $100 and a 6c. stamp on a check over that figure, went into operation that day. The 3c stamp heretofore not required on checks of less than $5.00 also will be required in that section in future. Either excise or postage stamps make the checks legal.

Alberta Musical Festivals.

During the past few years Alberta has seen a remarkable growth in community musical festivals, and these were held in no less than 11 school in spectorates last year, involving a large number of artists. These are in addition to the general provincial musical festival that has been a feature of musical activities in this province for over 25 years.

A Momentous World Event

A momentous conference is, at the time this article is written, taking place in Washington between Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and President Roosevelt of the United States. That conference is to be followed by others between the President and the heads of other nations. All are preliminary to the World Economic Conference to be held in London in June, and the object of these many preliminary conferences is to find common ground of agreement so as to assure the success of the world gathering to follow.

As Ramsay MacDonald said upon his arrival at New York, President Roosevelt and himself, who, he believed, were in harmony of spirit regarding all great world causes, were getting together to explore the problems that have to be dealt with and endeavour to find formulas for their solution. That is, Ramsay MacDonald, a life-long advocate of peace between nations in the sense that there should not be physical warfare, is now striving with might and main to bring about peace between the nations in an economic sense, and to endeavour to overcome to the fullest extent possible, the economic damage done to the world as the result of the last Great War. In President Roosevelt he finds a man of the same spirit imbued with determination.

At the time of writing, newspaper despatches from Washington indicate that, although the conferences between these two great leaders of the English-speaking world are not finally concluded, it is the universal belief that eventually satisfactory agreements have been reached on all the major problems, and common ground of action decided upon when the World Economic Conference assembles. Furthermore, that Great Britain and the United States will now untiedly endeavour to secure the acceptance of these views by other nations.

It is stated that these world leaders believe they have found formulas for the solution of existing world problems and the ending of the depression which has affected the world for the past three or four years. These solutions which it is frankly recognized cannot be brought about by any one nation, or even by two or three nations, because the problems are international and world-wide in extent and in their application. It is further recognized that betterment of existing conditions cannot be achieved by solving one or two of universally recognized problems; rather that action must be taken in regard to a whole series of matters all more or less correlated to each other, with one interlocking into another.

This is not to say that Premier and President have decided that the whole existing economic system of the world must be replaced by some entirely new system. It does mean that they recognize the fact that, while monetary systems, international finance, systems of exchange, war debts and reparations, tariffs, trade quotas and embargoes; production and distribution of commodities of all kinds; world armaments, etc., all have a bearing and effect on the one great problem, the basic cause of the world's troubles, and therefore the ultimate solution, is not to be found in any one of these things, but to a greater or lesser extent in all of them.

They are not approaching world problems as theorists, but as practical men of affairs, leaders of their people, world leaders of experience, determined, as Ramsay MacDonald says, "to clear the obstacles which block the highways of trade, both within our own countries and between the nations, and so restore the hope of employment to the workless millions who look to earn their living in factory and field."

Therefore, to the extent that existing monetary systems and international methods of finance and exchange present obstacles along the highways of trade they must be altered; not destroyed, but improved so as to facilitate greater freedom of exchange and render a maximum of service to the world. So, too, in regard to tariffs, quotas, embargoes, trade restrictions of all kinds. They are not seeking to bring about free world trade, which is presently impossible, but to encourage and promote, rather than discourage and restrict, trade between nations without doing damage to the interests of any; in a word, to develop mutually advantageous reciprocal exchange of commodities. Likewise, to deal with war debts, reparations, armaments in the same spirit and in order to achieve a like result. War debts cannot all be cancelled, reparations abandoned in toto, complete disarmament effected, but the obstacles erected by these things across the trade highways of the world can be largely removed.

Bringing the leading statesmen and heads of nations together in this spirit, and with such an object in view, is, we repeat, a momentous event in the world's history. International conferences, world conferences, for the exchange of national views and the exposition of national needs for friendly examination and discussion of opposing viewpoints, policies and interests, and approaching problems which are the concern of all in a conciliatory spirit, is the sane, sensible, businesslike and Christian attitude. It is constructive, not destructive. It is practical, not impossibly Utopian. It offers hope of success, because it is not narrowly selfish but accords consideration and fair play to all.

Barr Colonists Celebrate Settlement In What Is Now Saskatchewan

From a mere hamlet on the banks of the South Saskatchewan River to a city of 45,000 population is the 30-year history of Saskatoon that has been celebrated by its benefactors of 1903, the Barr colonists. Nearly 2,000 Barr colonists settled in Saskatoon on April 17, 1903, in search of a new life in the pioneer West. Most of the colonists remained, others pushed on to live as now Lloydminster.

Answers Old Question

Pressure Of Expanding Steam Causes Popcorn To Pop

Why does popcorn pop? Perhaps every child has asked that question at some time or other. Sometimes parents are unable to answer the question. The United States Department of Agriculture is authority for the statement that popcorn pops because the moisture stored in the kernels of popcorn is converted into expanding steam when the popcorn is heated. The internal pressure of the expanding steam within the kernels causes the violent explosions which we commonly call popping.

No More Thrills In Life For Sir Basil Zaharoff

Visitors from Monte Carlo tell about an old man who is assisted each day into a palatial automobile, taken on a brief drive in the nearby districts, and then is brought back to his hotel. This is just a bit of routine, but it composes a most setting for the withered, tired face of the man within the limousine. For the fact is that Sir Basil Zaharoff, for more than a generation romanticized throughout the world for his mysterious financial ramifications, and his amazing genius to sell armaments—to sell them on a big scale, to equip entire countries for war.

He became a multi-millionaire. He always was an amazing figure, one of those European anomalies created out of the blood of many nations with intrigue in his veins, aristocratic charm in his features, and at least ten languages on his tongue.

But today, Sir Basil is just a tired, old man. Playing with the fates of nations, of entire populations, no longer has any fascination for him. That has become dull. His fortune estimated at about $175,000,000 no longer buys him any thrills. He looks out from his car upon the lowly peasants, singing in the field, and one knows what thoughts pass within his brain.

The greater part of Monte Carlo belongs to him. But he doesn't visit the gambling Casino, and disclaims any interest in it.

He was born 84 years ago at Odessa, South Russia, of Greek parents. He grew up to know ten languages when still a lad, and thus entered an armaments firm as an interpreter.

Quite Out Of Date

Modern War Moving From Chivalry To Chemicals

An article by E. M. Forster, in the Spectator, London, says: The sword, the bayonet, the rifle, the cannon are all anachronisms and will soon only survive in a military tattoo. The destruction they caused was local and so the sentiments connected with them are out of date. In the war of the future destruction will be universal. Bacterial bombs as well as poison gas will fall from the sky, the distinction between combatants and non-combatants will disappear, women and children will be as suitable a target as men, and it is not this or that king and country which will go down in the general catastrophe, but all kings and all countries. War has moved from chivalry to chemicals, and unless we can get this into our heads we are doomed, kings included.

Legend About Aviatix

Javanese Paper Tells Why Amy Johnson Commenced To Fly

When Amy Johnson made her forced landing in the Dutch East Indies on her flight to Australia, details of her adventures were published by a missionary priest in a newspaper in Java and they received wide currency among the natives. An early form of the Amy Johnson legend has been published by the Rev. Father Lattey, a Jesuit priest, in the Times. Father Lattey derived his information from a Javan visitor to Heythrop College, Oxfordshire.

Translated into modern English, the Amy Johnson legend in its present form runs somewhat as follows: "In a far-away kingdom lived a husband and his wife. They were immensely rich and they had one daughter. They made her study under wise men so that she became very learned, but when she came home she did not understand household affairs, and she was scolded by her mother accordingly."

"Finally the daughter became angry herself and ran away and went to a skilful plumber, and the two together made a machine with fire inside to fly in the air. In this she circled above her village and landed there to the great astonishment of the people."

"Her parents, though still angry, were proud of her, and her father promised forgiveness if she could fly across the sea and come back safely. So she had to fly across the sea, and came to this island, by which time the fire inside the machine had gone out and she had to put in a new fire."

"Now she has still to cross one more sea, but if she succeeds and come home again her father will give her much money and build her a house with a roof of corrugated iron."

Mansion Turned Into Flats

Former Home Of English Duke Cost Over Two Million

Costly dual mansion, once the home of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, is to be turned into residential flats. Known as Sunderland House, Mayfair, it was built in 1895 at a cost of $2,500,000 by W. R. Vandervilt, American millionaire, when his daughter Consuelo married the Duke of Marlborough. The famous ballroom, eighty-nine feet by twenty, and twenty-seven feet high, is claimed to be the finest in Mayfair. It cost $250,000 and has marble pilasters, a painted ceiling, and a musicians' gallery. It is recorded that 350 couples have danced there. The thirty-two bedrooms are to be divided into flats, ranging from single rooms for bachelors to suites of four or five rooms.

Aiding Salvation Army

Dutch Indies Have Issued Stamps To Help Work

The new charity stamps of the Dutch Indies have attracted a great deal of interest, for they are the first stamps ever issued in aid of the Salvation Army. In Java and other remote parts of the Dutch Indies, the Salvation Army is largely responsible for the care and education of the native children, the management of hospitals and work among the lepers. That is the reason why this great institution is represented on these stamps.

The Dutch name for Salvation Army is "Leger des Heils." This appears on each stamp and also the Salvation Army crest in the two lower corners. The set consists of four stamps, and each stamp depicts the various handcraft that are taught the natives. The central subject of each design is in brown, and the remainder of the design in the following colors: Two-cent violet; five-cent, sage-green; twelve and a half cent, rose, fifteen-cent, blue.

Germany Training Troops

Out Of 770,000 Men 282,000 Are Ready For Immediate Action

Germany has at its disposal today 770,000 men trained for war, according to an estimate in the Czechoslovak newspaper Libove Noviny. Its figures follow:

The Reichswehr	100,000
The Navy	15,000
Regular Police	120,000
Auxiliary Police	45,000
Nazi Troopers	40,000
Stalhelm	60,000

Total

Of these, the newspaper asserts, 282,000 are ready for immediate action and the others are being trained under high pressure. Special attention, it is declared, is being paid in Germany to military aviation and successful attempts are being made to adapt commercial planes to military purposes.

Extensive Mining Activities In The Great Bear Lake Areas Are Promised For This Season

Officials of the Department of the Interior are early on the ground for the resumption of mining activities in the areas adjacent to Great Bear Lake in the North West Territories, according to a statement issued by Hon. Thomas G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior. To facilitate the early starting of work the Sub-Mining Recorder for the district and his assistants were sent in to Cameron Bay by aeroplane on one of the last flights before the close of winter flying. One of the leading companies has engaged a doctor for its mining camp and the Department of the Interior is co-operating by making him medical officer of health for the area. This means that a fully qualified doctor will be available and will also have power to take any necessary control measures in case of emergency. The Department of the Interior has also decided to lay out a settlement at Cameron Bay so as to be able to deal with applications for lots, water frontages, and other privileges, and the work is already under way.

As regards the Great Bear Lake area, from reports at the Interior there will be more actual development of mining properties than in the preceding three years combined. Excepting one or two companies, most of those in the district up to the present have confined their efforts to prospecting or to preliminary work but this year will see all the companies concentrating on the development of their promising holdings. In addition to work on the properties about the east end of Great Bear Lake, there is likely to be great activity both in prospecting and mining in the new silver camp on Camell River.

During the past winter, approximately one hundred men wintered at Cameron Bay and in its immediate vicinity. This population has been greatly increased in the past month by those going in by aeroplane before winter flying ceased, as it always does early in April. It is expected that Cameron Bay will be the distributing point for express, mail and freight due to its being located in the centre of a very active mining district and to its having a well protected harbour for boats and aeroplanes. At this point there are now established a post office, radio station, sub-mining recorder's office, Royal Canadian Mounted Police post, and headquarters of a number of trading, freighting and prospecting organizations. Three water-transportation companies are ready to carry heavy freight from the end of steel at Waterways to Cameron Bay, Great Bear Lake, and two well equipped aeroplane companies are carrying in passengers, mail and lighter commodities.

Last year Imperial Oil Limited at its well at Norman produced 11,000 gallons of gasoline and 21,000 gallons of fuel oil, of which 90 per cent was shipped to Great Bear Lake. Four coal leases have been staked on the northwest shore of Great Bear Lake. The coal, which is lignite, is easily mined and the expectation is that it will be extensively used for heating in the area.

Another significant matter brought to the attention of the Department was that the report of finds of placer gold on the headwaters of the Liard River in Yukon Territory had started a movement of miners and prospectors into that country. As this is a difficult area to reach from the offices of mining recorders in the Yukon, the Department of the Interior has arranged with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the head of a patrol which will go through the district, to act as sub-mining recorder.

Reputation For Figurative Language Is Held By Irish

The reputation of the Irish for committing "bulls" in the use of figurative language vies with that of the Scots as heroes for thrift stories. One of these gems still quoted occasionally in New York dates from the hangings involving Mayor Walker at Albany, where so many people of Irish descent foregathered. There the Mayor's attorney declaimed: "I can hear him in my mind's eye."

The strain of this effort could not be compared, however, with the shattering exploit imagined by an Irish member of the British House of Commons of former years, Mr. Boyle Roche. During a stormy debate Mr. Roche suddenly smelled a rat. But, carried away by the exuberance of his own verbosity, as Mr. Winston Churchill would say, he only smelled it, "but saw it floating in the air and hoped to nip it in the bud." An acrobatic feat, indeed!

Other peoples are not so adept at throwing off bulls in conversation oratory as the Irish because in general they lack that rich and decorative imagination characteristic of the Emerald Islanders. One expects every Irishman at one time or other verbally to fly through the roof of literalness. But other people are equally flighty, and, though the examples are rare, they are nevertheless as humorous as the best Irish specimen. It was a Scot who announced that "the pale face of the British soldier is the backbone of our Indian army," and an Englishman, descending upon the same subject, who declared that "patriotism is not backbone of the British Empire, and we must train it and bring it to the front."

But the bull which is so much the delight of connoisseurs as to have become a chestnut or classic, according to the perceptions of one's funny bone (is that a bull or a metaphor?) hails from the Antipodes. An Australian one day addressed his fellow-parliamentarians at Canberra on a point of order. His protest began: "Gentlemen, a member of this House has taken advantage of my absence to tweak my nose behind my back. I hope that the next time he abuses me behind my back like a coward he will do it to my face like a man, and not go skulking into the thicket to assail a gentleman who is not present to defend himself."

Transport In Olden Days

Everything Was Carried By Pack-Horses In England

In the early days of transport in England horses were used to carry rather than to draw. As such they were called pack-horses, and this practice continued down to almost modern times. Roads were bad, wheeled vehicles were to all intents and purposes impossible. Long trains of pack-horses might have been seen wending their way along the roads of the time, carrying their loads in various receptacles. Even coal had to be carried by this means. In the first half of the eighteenth century two gentlemen went from Glasgow to London, and wrote an account of their journey. From Glasgow to Grantham they met from time to time strings of pack-horses from thirty to forty in a gang, the mode by which goods were carried. It was not until the last part of the century to another. The leading horse of the gang carried a bell to give warning to travellers coming in the opposite direction, and the causeway not affording room to pass, they were obliged to make way for them, and plunge into the side of the road, usually of soft mud, out of which they often found it hard to get back again upon the causeway. What happened when two trains of pack-horses met the record does not say, it must be left to imagination. Until 1760 there was no road for wheeled carriages into Liverpool; no coaches left the town, even the merchandise intended for Manchester had to be carried on pack-horses, and long lines of them travelled regularly with bales of wool and cotton over the hills to and from Yorkshire. Some of the trackways are still in existence, they are usually referred to today as pony tracks.

The high tax on sugar seems to offer an opportunity for the producers of honey, if they are alert to the situation.

Homeless Londoners, who sleep in lodging houses, shelters and casual wards, now number less than 25,000.

A resolution asking the Dominion government to establish a farm produce marketing board was passed by the Dominion Conference of Dairy Farming at Ottawa.

As a result of the Imperial Conference, the resolution said, certain advantages have been secured in the British market for Canadian farm products, including dairy products, and the opportunity for marketing Canadian excess in the British market has been greatly enhanced.

While expressing appreciation of the valuable services already rendered by the various departments of the government to promote the marketing of farm products and more particularly dairy products, the resolution voices the opinion "a larger degree of co-operation between government agencies would bring better results."

The resolution submits that measures should immediately be taken designed to bring about more uniformity in the marketing of Canadian products, and a closer and more active co-operation between the various government agencies through the establishment of a farm produce marketing board or such other board as will accomplish the purposes aimed at.

The conference registered a vigorous protest against the present scale of milk prices in Canada. A resolution passed said the price, $4.35 per ton f.o.b., wells to manufacturers and $7.75 per ton f.o.b., wells to all other users constituted a gross discrimination against and places a serious handicap on the whole agricultural industry which is the largest consumer in the country.

Another resolution was passed requesting provincial governments not to issue further licenses for the operation of new creameries until a proven economic need has arisen, and that no licenses be issued to reopen a closed creamery until the need for its reopening is definitely shown.

A resolution dealing with dairy herd improvement and management through cow testing, recommended the training of inspectors, and butter and cheese-makers as missionaries of improved herd management among the dairy farmers, with whom they come in contact and continuation of the educational campaign for the elimination of the scrub bulls.

A Marvellous Product

Manchuria Has Supplied All World With Soya Bean

Perhaps the greatest gift of Manchuria to the world so far is the wonderful soya bean. Ask any English farmer how much the soya bean means to the development of good stock, and then think that all the world's supply of this marvellous product comes from Manchuria. It yields food for man and beast throughout Northern Asia, and the export trade is yearly expanding. Men isolated from centres of food supply for long periods find full nourishment for their arduous work, and struggle with the intense cold in chewing these beans.

Their first game started in 1922, took only five years. They have one more game to go to decide the series, each having won a game. Dodge predicts the championship will be decided by 1929.

Operator Would Not Give Private 'Phone Owner His Number

A gentleman who recently moved into a new apartment had a private, unlisted telephone installed, but discovered after the phone man left that the little card on the phone which should bear the subscriber's number was blank. Feeling that his phone number, however private, should be known to himself, he phoned information. She told him the number he sought was a private line and could not be given out. "Can't I find my own number?" he shouted. "I'm sorry," she said, "but we are not allowed to give out that information." He finally went to pieces, screening at a supervisor, and his wife took the apparatus away from him. She then called in person at the phone company's office and explained the situation more clearly than her husband had. Several hours later, a tiny number was sent around by a messenger boy, and the husband slipped it in the little slot. He's still mad, though. —The New Yorker.

Flat Model Of Dominion

Panorama Of Canada Being Made For Grain Show

A panoramic flat model of Canada, 95 feet long and 48 feet deep, will be the outstanding feature of the exhibit now being prepared by officials in charge of the Dominion's exhibit at the forthcoming World's Grain Show at Regina.

The exhibit will constitute a miniature Dominion in detail, a condensed panorama of the natural resources and industries of Canada.

Announcement of this feature of the forthcoming show was made by officials of the World's Grain Exhibition organization recently. The exhibit will contain more than 30,000 pieces.

Twenty-one other sections of the exhibit plan in the southeast corner of the exhibition building will be devoted to representations of other services and educational branches of the federal department of agriculture.

A Good Suggestion

The London Morning Post suggests that Britain hand over George Bernard Shaw to the United States to liquidate the war debt. Mr. Shaw's speech in New York was a disappointment, according to the New York Times. It might be a good idea to threaten to send them Shaw if they declined to cancel the debt.

Soldiers Puzzle Italy

Eighteen Harbored For Fifteen Years Refuse To Disclose Identity

Italian officials are wondering if they have been fooled after harboring almost a score of Russian soldiers for 15 years.

Near the end of the great war, the 15 soldiers were taken as prisoners and refused to give any information concerning themselves. When the war ended they were offered freedom but they declined to go. Consequently, they were numbered and are now known only by these numerals, having refused to give their names. The Italian government has given them food and shelter in return for odd jobs they performed about the army camps.

Everything went well until 1926, when for unexplained reasons they started a hunger strike. It soon became apparent they meant to go through with their plan, so the Italians sent them to a home for the mentally defective. That evidently was successful, for they began eating regularly again although, as before, they resisted all attempts to learn where they came from and who they were.

They have been in the home for seven years and remain today as much a mystery as ever. Allegedly say that unless the hunger strike and the uncommunicative attitude could be accepted as signs of insanity, there is nothing to indicate their sanity can be questioned.

Spooled the "Atmosphere"

"Buy American" Slogan Received Rude Jolt At Dinner In Philadelphia

The "Buy American" dinner at Philadelphia was moving successfully and patriotic fervor was at a high pitch. The George Washington motif was used. A number of Colonial hats and little hatchets had been supplied with the object of providing "atmosphere," which, however, was roughly dispelled when one of the hats became turned inside out by accident and the dreadful fact was revealed that it bore the label, "Made in Japan." The consternation increased when someone was moved to examine the hatchets and found that they bore the same trade-mark.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 7

JESUS FACES THE CROSS

Golden Text: "And it came to pass, when the days were well-nigh come that He should be received up, He steadfastly set His face to go to Jerusalem."—Luke 9:51.

Lesson: Mark 30:32-52.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:7-12.

Explanations and Comments

Announcement Of Coming Suffering and Death, verses 32-34.—On the way to Jerusalem Jesus took His disciples away from the crowd that always followed, to warn them once more of what was to be His fate. He was bound for Jerusalem, although He knew that a shameful death awaited Him there. Although He knew, "Because" He knew, for the suffering and death were His crowning. He was to give His life a ransom for many.

The disciples were amazed, and they that followed were afraid. Have you never had as companion one whose mental alienation you could distinctly feel? Such was the feeling of the disciples. They were amazed, they were thinking about earthly thrones for themselves, and they were awed as they gazed upon that face which belokened thoughts too deep for them to fathom.

There is much talk about Christ, and even some fellowship with Him, which is lacking in awe. Men both outside and inside the Christian Church speak of Him with unabated breath, as an interesting item in the world's conglomerate history. In religion we are only helped by that before which we are at our knees in adoration. Mark's portrait, in many ways the most human picture of Jesus, presents One who frightens those who know Him best. They are in the presence of a Man whose power is in specifically His power to know—"Henry Sloane Coffin.

The Back Seat Driver

Sense Danger and Cannot Read Mind Of Man At Wheel

The Hon. Brian Lewis, one of Britain's most daring racing motorists, entered a car in one thousand miles road race in Italy, but finding that he would have to trust to an Italian driver who knew the route, and that he would only be a passenger in his own car, he withdrew his entry. Courageous enough when he is at the wheel he fears to trust himself to another driver.

Isn't that just what is in the mind of the "back seat" drivers? They have an instinctive feeling of apprehension because they sense danger and do not know what is in the mind of the man at the wheel. He is probably a safe driver, but they note some impending risk and about warnings and advice at him, but he does not do the thing they would do themselves in the circumstances.

There are many experienced drivers who are unhappy when another person is driving. They know they are safe drivers, but they are not certain that the other fellow is. The back seat driver is more to be pitied than blamed. He, or she, is just nervous, and not an interfering person at all.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Associate In Arts Certificate

Recognition For Work Done In Junior Colleges Of Saskatchewan University

In order to secure suitable recognition for work done in junior colleges under the supervision of the University of Saskatchewan, the university will, beginning with convocation this year, grant a certificate to be known as the associate in arts certificate to students completing the equivalent of a second year arts course, Dean L. L. Dines has announced.

The qualifications are a first year at the "U," or senior matriculation and at least one year of study with certain options. The student may take in his second year three second-year arts subjects, of which English must be one with an additional appropriate course in music, household science, secretarial work or accounting.

Maple syrup and maple sugar production of Canada, if expressed entirely in terms of sugar, amounted to nearly 25,000,000 pounds in 1932.

Another British Discovery

Tellurium Lead Expands Water Pipes So They Will Not Burst

A few weeks ago we gave a description in this column about a British discovery which gives cotton the strength and sheen of silk, and now another British discovery is a substance that will expand lead pipes so that they will not burst during a thaw and which will also render cables under water immune from corrosion.

The discoverers are two engineers, W. Singleton and Brinley Jones, who were searching for a substance that would resist the corrosive action of tellurium. They hit upon something which they call tellurium lead after experimenting patiently with almost every known metallic material. It is really a waste product from copper refining, but the quantity required in the treatment of lead is very small, only about one part in one thousand.

This discovery means that there will be no more burst water pipes in houses. The pipe will expand with the pressure of the thawed ice and recede to normal when the pressure is relaxed. How serious the burst pipe nuisance is every house keeper knows. In the city of Sheffield alone there were 29,000 burst pipes during a severe winter four years ago.

The claims have been substantiated after strict test by the British Non-Ferrous Metals Research Association, and the invention opens up great possibilities as a commercial proposition. The cost is infinitesimal over ordinary lead, the extra amount in fitting an average sized house with the tellurium lead because less than two dollars over the ordinary lead.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Given Permanent Employment

Many Officials Provided For By Federal Government On Taking

Over Natural Resources Of the 1,087 officials retired when the three prairie provinces took over permanent employment by the provincial administrations, and 22 were taken on temporarily. A total of 137 were given other positions in the Dominion civil service.

This was the answer given by Hon. T. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior, to Hon. Charles Marill (Lib., Bonaventure) in the House of Commons when the Interior estimates were under review.

Mr. Murphy said a large number of the retired employees were now enjoying Superannuation and were not "anxious" to return to government service. However, the others were being absorbed as rapidly as circumstances would permit.

Surveyor Honored

Member of the party that mapped the route of the first transcontinental railway around the "great lakes" shores, A. P. Patrick, veteran Calgary surveyor, has received honorary life membership in the Dominion Land Surveyor's Association in recognition of more than 60 years' service.

MORATORIUM ON WAR DEBTS MAY BE ARRANGED

Washington.—Great Britain and the United States lined up for a seven-point world economic recovery program, embracing tariff reductions and higher silver prices.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and President Roosevelt ended their conversations with a declaration of understanding on agreements to be sought at the June World Economic Conference.

Mr. MacDonald and the American president declared for the following, in a statement distributed at the White House:

An increase in the general level of commodity prices, reorientation of commercial policies.

Reduction of tariffs, quotas and exchange restrictions.

World expansion of credit.

Capital expenditures by governments to stimulate business.

Re-establishment of an international monetary standard.

Improvement of the status of silver.

Their conversations "showed that our two governments were looking with a like purpose and a close similarity of method" at these objectives.

Granting that "between the cup and the lip are many slips," Mr. MacDonald told newspapermen as he left the White House for London, his conversations had been "fruitful in a way I hardly believed possible when I came."

The same enthusiasm over results of the Anglo-American negotiations was expressed by those close to President Roosevelt.

War debts relief for Great Britain, taken up by the president and prime minister, was not mentioned in their final statement. It remained for future settlement, together with the economic program outlined by the two statesmen.

The debt payments become due on June 15, almost simultaneously with the meeting of the London World Economic Conference, on which these statesmen in their hope for accomplishment of steps outlined recently.

Cancellation of these debts was not achieved at the conversations, but the British delegation left for home with the distinct understanding that a six-month moratorium will be declared before the June 15 payment falls due.

Official announcement likely will be delayed until efforts are made to persuade France to make the payment defaulted December 15 last.

This means, as was indicated in Ramsay MacDonald's press audience, that the British-United States conversations have succeeded beyond the most ardent hopes of the participants.

Criticized German Police

British Subject Sentenced To Month In Jail At Berlin

Berlin, Germany.—Fred Howard, a British subject, was sentenced to four weeks in prison at Regensburg for "using insulting language when interrogated by a post office censor."

Howard had criticized police methods in an intercepted letter.

The British ambassador is protesting against the arrest, without any charge, of William Mann, another British national. He was released after being detained two days.

Hon. Robert Weir Optimistic

Oshawa, Ont.—Increased markets and better prices for Canadian cattle, bacon, cheese, dairy products, fruits and poultry in Great Britain and sister countries of the empire are opening to the Canadian farmer. This was the substance of an address by Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, before a gathering of farmers.

Soviet Consulate Protests

London, Eng.—The Soviet embassy sent a formal note to Sir John Simon, British secretary for foreign affairs, as a result of an incident early today when some one threw a brick through a window in the Soviet consulate here. "The missile bore the legend, 'We don't like your Russian justice.'"

Heavy Increase in Mortgages

Total Held By Insurance Companies Trebled Since 1921

Ottawa, Ont.—Total mortgages held by Canadian insurance companies in this country and outstanding in 1931 amounted to $437,300,000. Dr. R. H. Coats, Dominion statistician, told the House of Commons banking committee. Of that amount, $30,700,000 was in arrears of principal one year or more, while $2,550,000 was "written off" that year.

Since 1921 the total of insurance company mortgages had trebled; the amount of principal in arrears had increased from six to seven per cent of the whole, while the total "written off" was five times greater.

Analysing the three western provinces, Dr. Coats showed in Saskatchewan the farm mortgages outstanding rose from $26,700,000 to $43,400,000 in the 10 years under review, but the amount of principal in arrears one year or more increased from $3,300,000 to $20,000,000, or from nine per cent to 46.1 per cent.

In Manitoba, farm mortgages between 1921 and 1931 declined from $11,500,000 to $10,800,000, but the amount of principal in arrears increased from 9.5 per cent to 12.9 per cent.

Alberta showed an increase in farm mortgages held by insurance companies from $17,500,000 in 1921 to $21,600,000 in 1931. The increase in unpaid principal was from 13.1 per cent to 22.3 per cent.

Gold Being Salvaged From H.M.S. Hampshire

Boxes Containing £15,000 Brought To Surface In One Day

New York.—A treasure in gold that has lain at the bottom of the sea since H.M.S. Hampshire sank with Earl Kitchener during the war is finally being salvaged, said reports received here.

Apparently authoritative advices said a salvage ship, working off the west Orkney Islands at the scene of one of the war's major tragedies, brought to the surface in a day £15,000 in gold—the first batch of the treasure in the "Hampshire's" strong-boxes.

Scenes of jubilation took place among the overjoyed salvage crew, advices said, as the yellow metal was exposed on deck to rays of the sun, the first time in almost 17 years.

Tariff On Knitted Garments

Liberals Oppose Proposed Increase When Matter Is Discussed

Ottawa, Ont.—Increase of the intermediate or treaty tariff from 25 per cent to 35 per cent on importations of knitted garments was under heavy fire in the House of Commons when this tariff schedule of the Rhodes budget was being reviewed in committee of the whole.

Liberals criticized the increase as being of little value to the woollen industry of Canada while at the same time raising the price to the consumer.

"The item was finally let stand, when Mr. Rhodes expressed his willingness to hold it back for further consideration."

May Affect Canada

Ottawa, Ont.—Hasty glances at summaries of the United Kingdom budget revealed Canada may be affected by the higher taxation of motor trucks and, to a lesser extent, on tractors. The United Kingdom has been one of Canada's best markets for automobiles and trucks and a taxation increase may curb this trade to some extent.

May Close Schools

Vancouver, B.C.—Closing of Vancouver school system for a month, at least, appears inevitable, in view of the action of the school board in reducing the estimates an additional $250,000. To make the reduction the trustees have curtailed and eliminated services, and according to a statement today, will be forced to close the schools for a period.

Pedestrians in Lisbon, Portugal, will be forbidden to speak while crossing the road, if a proposed ordinance is passed.

U.S. SOLICITOR-GENERAL

James C. Biggs, who has been named by President Roosevelt for the post of Solicitor-General of the United States. Mr. Biggs, whose appointment came as a surprise to Washington, has practised law in Raleigh since 1911, and at one time was a member of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Advances To Western Canada

Federal Government Makes Loans Under Farm Relief Act

Ottawa, Ont.—Orders-in-council were tabled in the House of Commons covering the following loans and advances made to the western provinces under authority of the Unemployment and Farm Relief Act:

$370,000 to Manitoba on one year 5½ per cent. treasury bills, to cover unpaid portion of previous loan of $600,000 in respect to seedling loans.

$500,000 as a renewal loan to Alberta on one year 5½ per cent. treasury bills, and

Advances of $60,000 to Manitoba; $45,000 to Saskatchewan, and $115,000 to British Columbia for the purpose of relief of the single, unemployed homese.

Opening Date Set

World Conference Will Assemble At London On June 12

Washington, June 12 has been agreed upon by Prime Minister MacDonald, President Roosevelt and former Premier Herriot as the opening date for the World Economic Conference at London, England.

London, Eng.—June 12, fixed as assembling time for the World Economic Conference in London, is accepted in Downing street as final, barring serious objection by Japan or some other far-distant nation. There was a possibility Japan would consider the notice too short to permit its delegation to arrive here.

Tax On Glucose

Ottawa, Ont.—A tax of two cents a pound was levied against glucose by Finance Minister Rhodes in the House of Commons, Wednesday. This placed it on a taxation parity with household sugar.

Severe Trade War

Trade Between Britain and Russia Is At Standstill

London, Eng.—Great Britain and Soviet Russia were at grips today in a severe trade war which at present is slated to continue at least as long as British subjects are held in jail in Moscow.

Its cost to the two countries in goods alone probably would total about $100,000,000 in a year, that being the approximate value of trade now at a standstill because of embargoes.

Great Britain's 80-per cent. ban on Russian imports went into effect Tuesday night, April 25, and simultaneously Russia retaliated with a complete embargo on British imports and other drastic restrictions on British shipping and commerce.

Great Britain proclaimed its embargo last Wednesday when a Soviet supreme court imposed three and two-year sentences on L. C. Thornton and William L. MacDonald, British engineers who were convicted of espionage and espionage against the Soviet Union.

Goods chiefly affected by the British embargo are butter, poultry, cereals, oil and timber from the Soviet Union.

Russian restrictions apparently are much more severe than those imposed here, not only are purchases of any kind in Great Britain prohibited, but chartering of British merchant ships by Russian companies is banned and restrictions are imposed on use of British ports by Russian ships and transportation of British goods through Russia to the Far East. Higher duties also are imposed on British ships entering Soviet ports.

Would Seize Road

Russia Sees Japanese Plot To Gain Control

Moscow, Russia.—A despatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, quoting "competent sources," declared that Japanese circles in Manchuria, acting with approval of the Japanese Kwantung army headquarters, have adopted a plan to seize the Chinese Eastern railway from Soviet Russia.

This would be accomplished "under the pretext of transferring this road to Manchukuo," the despatch said, and would be "a grave violation of the Peking-Mukden treaties" providing for the construction and operation of the road.

Disorganization of normal activities of the railway, particularly of the eastern branch, by interrupting through freight traffic from Russian lines and the general undermining of the railway's financial position would precede the seizure according to the despatch.

May Try Long Flight

Ottawa, Ont.—Possibilities of a non-stop trans-Canada flight attempt were seen here in the arrival of J. F. Hebert, Montreal, well-known for his long-distance flying exploits. Last year he flew from London, Eng., to Sydney, Australia.

EVIDENCE ON SUGAR PROFITS IS NOW SOUGHT

Ottawa, Ont.—Evidence to form the basis of an investigation would be welcomed by the government, Finance Minister R. H. Rhodes told the House of Commons, replying to charges there had been wholesale profiteering in sugar in anticipation of the two-cent tax levied in the budget.

Opposition members said there must have been a leak from official Ottawa several days before the budget to account for the large orders which flooded the refineries. A careful investigation, replied the finance minister, had failed to reveal evidence of a tip-off from Ottawa, but on this point as well he would welcome evidence.

The finance minister brought in several taxation amendments, all accepted by the House. Among them were: A reduction in the proposed tax on perfume spirits; reductions in taxes on cigarette tubes, toilet soap, unfermented wort and malt; a reduction in a two-cent-a-pound tax on glucose and alteration of the duty on rubber tires which was changed from an ad valorem to a specific basis.

Charles Howard, Liberal, Sherbrooke, who made the original charges, told one Montreal broker making a profit of $140,000 in a few hours through its sugar purchases. There were so many orders from one Montreal refinery, taxis were used to cart away the sugar. He suggested a double penalty for profiteers—extending the back tax one month to catch their profits and publishing their names and details of their transactions.

F. G. Sanderson, Lib., South Perth, said he had heard a Toronto brokerage firm made a profit of $2,000,000, buying train-loads of sugar.

The finance minister intimated the government already had checked on profiteering reports which have been street-gossip here for weeks. Officials of the department of revenue, he said, had figured the maximum loss the treasury might have sustained, was $2,000,000. And replying directly to the report of a $2,000,000 profit by the Toronto firm, he said a check-up by revenue officers at the refineries, had shown no transaction even approaching this size. There wasn't enough sugar in the country to make possible an order of that size.

Two or three factors might have combined to create pre-budget runs on refineries, said Mr. Rhodes, the first was an increase in raw sugar prices. The second was cumulative—through wholesalers and housewives buying sugar on the strength of newspaper forecasts of the budget. On this latter point a Winnipeg firm borrowed $18,000 to buy tea and coffee in anticipation of a tax, but guessed wrong and still had their supplies.

Radicals Not Wanted

Unemployed Men Give Rough Treatment To Trouble Makers

Victoria, B.C.—Unemployed men housed at the Three Valley camp near Revelstoke are evidently satisfied with their lot, judging by their treatment of two men who tried to persuade the jobless out of camp to attend a meeting of alleged radicals. A short, sharp fight ensued, resulting in rough treatment being meted out to J. J. McDonnell and George McLeod. Both men were arrested on charges of assault and remanded for several days. Meanwhile, the unemployed went back to camp after sending warnings to other orators to keep away from Three Valley.

Two other men were taken into custody at Camp 338, near Lytton on similar charges.

Ask Withdrawal Of Bill

Ottawa, Ont.—The Senate shipping committee recommended withdrawal of a bill which would have completely revised the Canada Shipping Act, but will bring down a bill amending only certain sections of the act. "Certain constitutional difficulties," according to Senator Arthur Meighen, led to the recommended withdrawal.

Lighten Labor, Banish Care.

Nowadays you press a button or perhaps a switch, or some little gadget, and a lot of things happen around a home that lighten labor and banish trouble.

A whirling fan brings a cooling breeze, or a little copper, dish like affair throws out a sizzling blast which warms the room in a short time.

Another button boils coffee or tea, toasts bread, cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom. Another makes a happy laundress out of a dismal washwoman. Another one cools the icebox. Another—but why go on?

Labor saving and time saving devices have come and are today within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them and live better because of them.

Crossing the Big Bend of the Columbia River.

The tourist entering British Columbia by way of Banff, Lake Louise and the Kicking Horse Trail reaches Golden to find his way apparently barred by a section of as yet uncompleted highway between that point and Revelstoke. This gap, however, has been bridged by the railway, and automobile baggage cars are its answer to a direct route to or from the Pacific thru the Canadian Rockies. During the period from June 15 to Sept. 15 automobiles will be carried over the Selkirk range between these points semi-weekly in each direction.

Automobile baggage cars will be attached to regular passenger train No. 2 eastbound from Revelstoke on Sat. and Tues, and to train No. 3 westbound from Golden on Sun. and Wed. The train journey between Revelstoke and Golden will be in daylight; there will be no delay as his auto will be carried on the same as motorist and will be available for immediate delivery on arrival.

Autos should be delivered at the shipping point 90 mins. prior to departure of train.

A wait at either Golden or Revelstoke need not be looked on as an unfortunate affair, as at both places there are a number of interesting things to see and to do. As Golden there is the inducement to spend the extra hours exploring the delights of Yoho National park.

Mount Revelstoke, rising behind the city of Revelstoke, gives its name to a national park containing 100 square miles of magnificent scenery. A road of easy gradients winds upward thru the park for 22 miles to an elevation of 8500 ft., from which an imposing panorama is obtained.

The Printed Word.

According to the New York Times radio and television have a long way to go before they can put out of business the printed word and picture—the newspaper and the book. The air waves must be able not only to transmit sound and eight but to file the message for reference at the convenience of the customer. A person must sit up and hear a speech over the radio, but one can read it in the paper whenever one likes.

In the second place, the radio speech is a fleeting memory, but the printed speech in the newspaper is a record for all time. Radio and television will have overtaken the printed newspaper when the air waves are automatically received and recorded—on a sheet of paper of some kind. "In other words, we got down to print again."

But radio and television and all other at present imaginable forms of wave communication can never compete with the printed word as an instrument for the defense of liberty. We think of print and publication as synonymous.

Words are printed for purpose of being circulated and published. The press exists for the purpose of creating publicity, of speaking in the open, letting in the light, and spreading knowledge.

And where there is light and knowledge there is freedom.

DOES OWN HOUSE- WORK AT 70

With the Help of Kruschen

"For nine years now I have used Kruschen Salts and could not do without them. I take a third of a teaspoon in a cup of water as hot as I can drink it. No sickness, no headaches now. I am 70 years of age in April, and just with taking Kruschen Salts am able to do all my housework duties myself. I recommend Kruschen to all my neighbours. Before I began taking it I was never away from the doctor, but now I never need him. I used to have sick headaches and then was not able to do anything. But now it is different—thanks to Kruschen Salts."—(Mrs.) J.G.

Kruschen keeps the organs of the body working actively, cleanses all clogging impurities from the system, and sends clear, vigorous blood coursing through the veins. And the result? An end to all life's minor ills and miseries. No more headaches, tiredness, depression, "nerves," or constipation. Instead, a sensation of delightful freshness, high spirits, happy outlook—in short, sheer good health!

"There's one lucky devil in this world, Baker. The man that Miss MacMillan's going to marry."

Alan winced. He had never thought of Joyce marrying another man. The remark aroused a passionate unreasoning hurt in him.

Sitting at the edge of the bed, Buzzard smoked a cigarette and glanced nervously at his partner who had lain down and was trying to get a little rest to at himself for the fight and battle just ahead. Something was wrong between Alan and this winsome, spirited Joyce MacMillan. There was, or had been, some passionate relationship between them. It had evidently gone on the rocks: Baker was engaged to some girl at Fort Endurance, and Miss MacMillan . . .

Well, there was that incident which he himself had seen half an hour ago when he happened to glance through the window.

"It's a pity," he thought, "for them to bust up. A d-d shame, that's what. She's a regular girl. Looks, personality and smarts. . . . Lord, I'd hate to ever quarrel with her!"

He wondered whether to tell Alan about that incident he'd seen. Alan was evidently floundering around in the dark about Miss MacMillan. He was a bit awkward and blundered in such matters, Buzzard thought.

"First chance I get, believe I'll tell him what she did. He ought to know. She either loves him or hates him, to do a thing like that!"

When Alan woke up late in the evening, Buzzard was still asleep and Bill Hardcock was dead to the world. Hoping to find Joyce, he went out into the trading hall.

Joyce was not there. For a few moments Alan stood looking about. As Bill had told him, she was closing out the post. He hated to think of Joyce's girlhood home being sold to some utter stranger. Thinking of Larry, soon to be invalided out of service and condemned to a life of interminable idleness, he wondered whether he might not get this post for his crippled patrol partner. It was well located, and Larry's host of friends among the Indians would be sure to bring him their fur.

Still hunting Joyce, he went down to the landing where old Pence, waiting at his story-stick, was guarding the plane against the ice floating down and damaging it.

"You rise up early, Alan by?"

"Yes. Got a couple things to do. They must've been on my mind. Where's Joyce?"

"She went down the river bank down that 't' that bust brook come out'n th' timber, to snag some trout. We're shy on meat."

Alan stepped into Dave MacMillan's canoe, laid in an extra paddle, and started down stream. Gliding around the first bend, he saw Joyce two hundred yards ahead, standing on a jutting rock beside a brook mouth. When he came alongside and lifted the canoe prow out upon the shivering rock, she greeted him with a quiet friendly smile. They sat down together on the wolf-foot moss.

After his days in the plains, with the swish of hurrying streets and the thunder of a motor dining his ears, it was incredibly quiet on the spruce-buried stream.

Very observant, he covertly stared at Joyce. She was looking past him at the far shore and woods. As he studied her features, it seemed to Alan that something profound and happened to her since he saw her last. She had changed; she was hardly the same girl. There was some new strange spiritual quality about her, as of a person who has gone down into a ravaging sickness and has had the strength to conquer and rise out of it, but at a terrible cost.

To break the silence between them he began telling her of these last weeks—his trip to Edmonton, his providential luck in meeting Buzzard, the prison charges that stood against them, their flight back north, their escape from Haskeel's trap, his gladness when he saw her running down the path.

As she listened, thoroughly alive to the danger and hardships he had gone through, Joyce felt a profound gratitude, for she knew Alan had done this largely for her sake. When he mentioned the prison charges facing him, she experienced a moment of panic; and imagined herself testifying in his behalf, fighting for him as he had fought for her.

A little later, after they had discussed plans for closing in upon the bandits, Alan rose up and gave her his hand to rise. He said:

"I've got to go down river a few miles, Joyce. Bill cached some supplies near that saw where you and I got upset that day and had to swim for it. I want to bring them up here this evening."

He waited a moment for some hint that she might wish to go along with him. None came. He suggested:

"I'd take only a couple hours. If you'd care to, I'd like for you to go."

"I'd better stay. Bill and Mr. Featherfoot will be awake before long. I'll have supper ready when you get back."

"I can help you with that—if you'll go."

Joyce hesitated. She was aware that Alan deeply wanted her company. After all he'd done for her, it seemed cruelly ungrateful to refuse. And she herself wanted to go. But bitter wisdom whispered a warning. Since that morning, when she turned his letters and picture and gifts to ashes, there had been no looking back. There must be none now. She had strength and courage to talk with him calmly and to act toward him as though they had never been no looking back to good friends; but she dared not presume too far on that new-born strength. To be alone with him two hours on a twilight river, with their talk inevitably drifting to former times—it would be unbearable.

"With gentle firmness she said: 'I'd like to go Alan. But I'll have to run back to the post. There's so many things to do.' She tried to smile. 'I don't want to be a neglectful hostess to Bill and Mr. Featherfoot.'"

As she started up the river trail, her thoughts brooded on several things Alan had said in the course of his story, especially on his occasional references to Elizabeth. Not that he had said anything derogatory about Elizabeth. But his tone, his manner . . . Was he becoming a little disillusioned? Was he seeing Elizabeth, spurning not as the sister of his dead partner Curt, not as a girl to be cherished and shielded, but as a selfish, calculating person? Was he dimly foreseeing what his married life with her was going to be?

Joyce checked herself sharply from hoping or even thinking that Alan might break off his engagement, or from extending him anything more than grateful friendship. She was glad, profoundly glad, that his words had caused no resurrection of hope, no tremor of emotion. The discovery of her strength suffused her with a kind of pride. But for all that, she felt a great sorrow for Alan. He was bitterly unhappy, and she knew it. What was his situation now? Police work, his life in the North, comradeship with his old friends—everything that he had cherished was stripped away from him, and he was going into a marriage reluctantly and forcing himself into a life that was alien to his whole nature. When Joyce thought of all that, her sympathy, tender and compassionate, went out to him wholeheartedly.

Returning at deep twilight with the drums, Alan found Buzzard cleaning found spark plugs on the plane engine.

Candles were already lit in the trading store. Alan looked up the path, expecting to see Joyce's figure in the lighted doorway. He hoped to have an hour to two alone with her this evening. But all day the conviction had grown upon him that a talk would be worse than useless. If only God's truth didn't sound so preposterous; if only he could tell Joyce that he had become engaged to Elizabeth, had expected to marry Elizabeth, and yet all the time, in his deepest longing, had wanted not Elizabeth but her. . . .

"If we're going to get away from here first thing in the morning," Buzzard broke into his thoughts, "we ought to put in a couple hours' work after supper on these alleron leads. They're pretty bad frayed around the pulleys."

"What!" Alan whirled on him, gasping. "Burn Up That Centaure Fleeshee?"

Alan knew that Buzzard was asking him to help with that job. But he did not answer. He wanted this evening with Joyce. Unless he took circumstances into his own hands tonight, he and Joyce would drift across a continent from each other in a few days more. Torn with uncertainty of her affections for him, he was debating about this evening. After the incidents of today—his picture gone, her coldness, her refusal to go with him—he was wavering, undecided.

He tossed his cigarette out on the water. "Maybe we'd better go up and help Joyce what we can."

Buzzard did not stir. For several minutes he had been glancing uneasily at Alan. Finally he screwed up courage to speak.

"It's strictly none of my business, Alan, but—but . . . You're engaged to a girl there at Endurance, but you bought Miss MacMillan that rainbow scarf with your last dollar and you talked a lot about getting back here and helping her."

Alan was loath to speak of Joyce, even with a partner. He tried to say quietly: "We've been good friends for several years. She's one of the sweetest girls I ever knew. You've met her now. You'd naturally want to help her, wouldn't you?"

"Of course. But—but . . . See here, I may be imagining things; you can tell me to shut up if you want to—but it seems to me there's something wrong between you and her."

Alan repeated, rather shortly: "We're good friends. There's nothing more than that."

Buzzard knew different. He had had a vague suspicion of it ever since Alan first mentioned Joyce MacMillan's name at the cafe in Edmonton. As he remembered the incident of this noon, he wondered at the Spartan courage Joyce had shown and at the passion behind such an act. Surely some bitter unhappiness lay between her and Baker.

He said reluctantly: "If that's true, if you're merely friends and nothing more, what made her burn up that scarf you brought her?"

"What!" Alan whirled on him, gasping. "Burn up that Centaure Fleeshee?"

"It's strictly none of my business, Alan, but—but . . . You're engaged to a girl there at Endurance, but you bought Miss MacMillan that rainbow

Sir Henry Royce Of Auto Fame Dies In England

Sir Henry Royce, 70, of West Wittering, England, whose brain was behind some of the world's fastest automobiles and aeroplane engines, is dead after being bedridden for six months. He was a joint founder with C. S. Rolls of Rolls-Royce, Ltd., motor car and aeroplane engine builders, of Derby and London, in 1907.

He founded Royce, Ltd., mechanical and electrical engineers of Manchester, in 1884. When Rolls-Royce, Ltd., was formed he became its director and chief engineer.

He designed the engines which gained for Great Britain speed records on land, sea and air. It was with his engines that Flight-Lieut. G. H. Sturtevant established the world air record, Sir Malcolm Campbell shattered his own land record and Kaye Don secured the speedboat record.

No Bonus on Stallions.

The stallion bonus plan operated by the Federal Government last year has been cancelled. The Dominion department was hoping to secure co-operation from the provincial department in operating a joint policy, but this was found impossible.

The policy of assisting clubs will be operated this year in Alberta as was the case in 1932. Horsemen are disappointed over the withdrawal of the stallion bonus plan.

Under the stallion club policy there has to be the payment of a $3 annual membership fee. After one third of the stallion service fee has been collected from all the club members, the owner of the stallion and the club secretary send their statement to Ottawa and the government pays the other one-third.

Fishing Season Opens.

Alberta's fishing enthusiasts are preparing for the opening of the season on Tues., May 16, when trout fishing will open in North Saskatchewan and Red Deer rivers and their tributaries, and in Cold Lake, and when fishing of perch, pickerel, pike, goldeyes will also open, being confined to waters where no trout, grayling or Rocky mountain whitefish are found.

Fishing for trout and grayling in the Athabasca and its tributaries and in Bow river and its tributaries south to the international border, does not open till June 15. Residents of the province require angling permits only for those waters frequented by trout, grayling or R. M. whitefish. The Fisheries Dept. warns fishermen to become conversant with the regulations in every respect.

Canadian railway salaries have experienced severe cuts over the past few years. This has applied to officers as well as to workers on the trains and along the lines. The recently issued annual report of the C. P. R. announced that E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the C. P. R., had instituted a special cut of 15 per cent. for himself and the Company's directors. This makes a total cut of 15% for these classes the decline in earnings began.

Nipigon River's famous speckled trout don't know it yet but the season has gone forth that non-residents will pay $5.50 for an annual fishing license, or about half the charge hitherto. Further, Nipigon will offer their services this year for $23.00 a week as against $28.00 in 1932. These trout in the Nipigon pools and in those off the islands at its mouth including St. Ignace, run to seven pounds and up.

Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan recently hung up a new speed record when she travelled the 3,237 miles from Honolulu to Victoria in four days, eight hours and three minutes, clipping seven hours, 47 minutes from her previous time for the voyage and most outdistancing the best mark for any other Pacific liner except the Empress of Canada.

The literary life of the year has been made by Frederic Niven, Canadian author, living near Nelson, B.C., whose "Mrs. Barry" has been recently hailed by authorities as one of the most profoundly moving books ever written. Mr. Niven, who thus breaks into the ranks of best sellers, earlier in the century handled baggage and freight for the Canadian Pacific Railway at Nelson.

H. F. Mathews, general manager, Canadian Pacific hotels in western Canada, with headquarters at Winnipeg, has been promoted general manager of the company's hotel system from coast to coast, with headquarters in Montreal, according to a recent announcement by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the railway.
